

1777 T Street NW, Washington DC 20009-7125 | T 800.837.3792 202.238.9088 | F 202.238.9003 | legal@americanhumanist.org | www.humanistlegalcenter.org

October 9, 2014

Via Email

Nancy Graham, Ed.D. – Superintendent NancyJG@leeschools.net
School District of Lee County
2855 Colonial Blvd.
Fort Myers, FL 33966

Angela Roles – Principal AngelaRR@leeschools.net
Cypress Lake High School
6750 Panther Lane
Fort Myers, FL 33919

RE: Constitutional violation requiring immediate attention

Dear Dr. Graham and Ms. Roles,

A student from Cypress Lake High School contacted our office today to request assistance with regard to a very serious constitutional violation that occurred this morning under the authority of your school and school district. The student reports that he was publicly berated and wrongfully punished by his teacher for exercising his constitutional right to opt out of the Pledge of Allegiance. He was yelled at and accused by that teacher in front of the class of being unpatriotic, then sent to in-school suspension. To compound the problem, when he turned to the administration for support, he was instead told to go home unless he would agree to stand up for the Pledge. This treatment of this student is totally unacceptable, a direct violation of the student's fundamental constitutional rights, and therefore the student demands that the school system take IMMEDIATE action to correct it. As you should know, the right of students to opt out of Pledge participation was settled long ago by the United States Supreme Court in West Virginia State Bd. of Educ. v. Barnette, 319 U.S. 624 (1943). Consequently, any actions by your school or its agents infringing upon that right would be actionable as a serious constitutional violation.

The student in question, currently a senior with a solid academic record and no history of disciplinary problems, does not wish to participate in the Pledge exercise in any manner, for several reasons. For one, he feels that the claim that the nation provides "liberty and justice for all" is simply not true, and thus any participation in the exercise would be hypocritical and insincere on his part. He also identifies as an atheist and feels that the "under God" wording, which was added to the Pledge in the 1950s, does not belong in a government-sponsored school exercise. As such, he recently began sitting out the Pledge, and in fact had no difficulty in doing so for a couple of days with other teachers. However, in the class of Ms. Edlyna Alfaro this morning, the problem erupted due to her actions. He was confronted by Ms. Alfaro in the middle of the exercise as she unleashed a tirade at him. After calling him unpatriotic and disrespectful, she demanded that he stand up or go to in-school suspension, which is a form of punishment. The student therefore left the room and went to an assistant principal for assistance, expecting that surely the situation could be straightened out by someone who understood student rights, but instead he was given the options of standing up for the exercise, going to in-school suspension, or going home. The student therefore went home.

Such actions by your school district staff are totally inappropriate, and we demand, among other things, that this teacher and administrator apologize to the student for the gross insensitivity to his rights. We also demand the following assurances: (1) That students and teachers at in your school district be advised that students may stay seated for any Pledge exercise at the school and that any written policy containing a standing requirement be rescinded; (2) That teachers be instructed that under no circumstances should they attempt to persuade students to refrain from exercising the right to nonparticipation, question students as to the reason for nonparticipation, or characterize opting out as misconduct or otherwise wrongful; and (3) That no disciplinary or other retaliatory measures of any kind will be directed toward any student for nonparticipation in the Pledge exercise.

The American Humanist Association (AHA) is a national nonprofit organization with over 334,000 supporters and members across the country, including many in Florida. The mission of AHA's legal center is to protect one of the most fundamental principles of our democracy: the First Amendment rights to free speech and religious liberty. Our legal center includes a network of cooperating attorneys from around the country, including Florida, and we have litigated constitutional cases in state and federal courts from coast to coast.

Since the Supreme Court's ruling in Barnette, federal courts have irrefutably recognized the First Amendment right of students to remain silent and seated during the Pledge.¹ That "students have a constitutional right to remain seated during the Pledge is well established." Frazier v. Winn, 535 F.3d 1279, 1282 (11th Cir. 2008) (per curiam), cert. denied, 558 U.S. 818 (2009) (finding that all public school students have the First Amendment right not to stand during the Pledge). See also Holloman ex rel. Holloman v. Harland, 370 F.3d 1252, 1274, 1278-79 (11th Cir. 2004) (noting that the right to remain seated and silent during the Pledge is "clearly established"); Walker-Serrano ex rel. Walker v. Leonard, 325 F.3d 412, 417 (3d Cir. 2003) ("For over fifty years, the law has protected elementary students' rights to refrain from reciting the pledge of allegiance to our flag. Punishing a child for non-disruptively expressing her opposition to recitation of the pledge would seem to be as offensive to the First Amendment as requiring its oration.") (citation omitted); Rabideau v. Beekmantown Cent. Sch. Dist., 89 F. Supp. 2d 263, 267

¹ In Barnette, the Supreme Court held that public school officials are forbidden under the First Amendment from compelling students to salute the flag or recite the Pledge. 319 U.S. at 642. Notably, the Court was aware that the government might demand other "gestures of acceptance or respect: . . . a bowed or bared head, a bended knee," id. at 632, and reiterated that the government may not compel students to affirm their loyalty "by word or act." Id. at 642 (emphasis added).

(N.D.N.Y. 2000) (“It is well established that a school may not require its students to stand for or recite the Pledge of Allegiance or punish any student for his/her failure to do so.”) (citing Barnette, 319 U.S. 624; Russo v. Cent. Sch. Dist. No. 1, 469 F.2d 623 (2d Cir. 1972)).

Indeed, the federal appellate courts have been unanimous in concluding that public school officials are prohibited from compelling students to stand during the Pledge. See, e.g., Frazier, 535 F.3d at 1282; Holloman, 370 at 1274-79; Circle Sch. v. Pappert, 381 F.3d 172, 178 (3d Cir. 2004); Walker, 325 F.3d at 417; Lipp v. Morris, 579 F.2d 834, 836 (3d Cir. 1978) (ruling that a state statute requiring students to stand during the Pledge was an unconstitutional compulsion of expression); Goetz v. Ansell, 477 F.2d 636, 637-38 (2d Cir. 1973) (holding that a student has the right to remain quietly seated during the Pledge and cannot be compelled to leave the room if he chooses not to stand); Banks v. Bd. of Public Instruction, 314 F. Supp. 285, 294-96 (S.D. Fla. 1970), aff’d, 450 F.2d 1103 (5th Cir. 1971) (concluding that a rule requiring students to stand during the Pledge was unconstitutional). See also Newdow v. United States Cong., 328 F.3d 466, 489 (9th Cir. 2002) (noting that schools may not “coerce impressionable young schoolchildren to recite [the Pledge], or even to stand mute while it is being recited by their classmates.”).

Federal district courts and state courts have also consistently ruled that students have a constitutional right to remain silent and seated during the Pledge. See Rabideau, 89 F. Supp. 2d at 267; Frain v. Baron, 307 F.Supp. 27, 33-34 (E.D.N.Y. 1969) (enjoining school from “excluding [students] from their classrooms during the Pledge of Allegiance, or from treating any student who refuses for reasons of conscience to participate in the Pledge in any different way from those who participate.”); State v. Lundquist, 262 Md. 534, 554-55 (Md. 1971) (state statute requiring teachers and students to salute the flag during the Pledge violated the First Amendment freedom of speech clause). Cf. Sheldon v. Fannin, 221 F. Supp. 766, 768 (D. Ariz. 1963) (enjoining elementary school from suspending Jehovah’s Witness students solely because they silently refused to stand for the national anthem).

The student here does not deserve to be disciplined merely because he chooses to exercise his constitutional rights. Indeed, instead of rote recitation, he has given thoughtful consideration of the underlying religious and political issues raised by the exercise, and this should, if anything, earn him the respect of teachers. In Tinker v. Des Moines Indep. Cmty. Sch. Dist., 393 U.S. 503, 506-07 (1969), the Supreme Court famously declared: “It can hardly be argued that either students or teachers shed their constitutional rights to freedom of speech or expression at the schoolhouse gate. This has been the unmistakable holding of this Court for almost 50 years.” (citing Barnette, among other cases)

In Banks, the court applied Tinker to the act of refusing to stand for the Pledge and held: “The conduct of Andrew Banks in refusing to stand during the pledge ceremony constituted an expression of his religious beliefs and political opinions. His refusal to stand was no less a form of expression than the wearing of the black armband was to Mary Beth Tinker. He was exercising a right ‘akin to pure speech.’” 314 F. Supp at 295. Importantly, not only do students have the right to silently sit during the Pledge, but they also have a right to affirmatively protest the Pledge exercise. See Holloman, 370 F.3d at 1273-74 (raising fist during Pledge was protected speech even if fellow classmates found it objectionable and distracting). Referring to Banks, the Eleventh Circuit pointed out in Holloman that “its ruling was not based on Banks's First Amendment right to remain silent, but his First Amendment right to affirmatively express himself.” 370 F.3d at 1273-74 (emphasis added).

We are most hopeful that you will recognize the concerns raised by this letter and address them properly. Please respond within seven (7) days. We thank you in advance for your attention to this matter.

Very truly yours,
Monica Miller, Esq.